Dear VeloTek Performance Athlete,

VeloTek Performance is excited to offer three levels of coaching services. New or experienced riders who prefer frequent personal contact, the Professional and Advantage levels will further your cycling success – many athletes find daily or weekly contact beneficial. For those on a budget, the Elite plan will provide years of experience to help you achieve your cycling goals. Choose a coaching plan that fits your budget, needs, and ambition:

- VeloTek Performance Professional Coaching is not just for professional cyclists but for the discerning athlete who leaves nothing to chance; includes all aspects of testing and services, with regular review and unlimited contact to maximize your cycling potential.
- VeloTek Performance Advantage Coaching is for the athlete who prefers limited coach contact and values the flexibility of weekly training adjustments but may not require certain services such as goal setting and nutritional review quite as often.
- VeloTek Performance Elite Coaching is a competitively priced coaching plan for cyclists who would like a customized training program with a slightly higher level of personal contact; also features a greater amount of data review and nutritional consultation.

A full year's commitment to training and recovery is required to maximize your personal cycling success while compartmentalizing your training year has substantially reduced benefits. Your transition (recovery) phase in the fall, though you later enter build phase, are the two most important training periods of the year. The right amount of recovery and a strong foundation of smart training is the ideal preparation for the following competitive season.

Sincerely,

Jim Whitaker
